“Play is a central component in children’s mental growth. Play helps children make meaning in their world, it helps them learn about themselves, and equally crucially, it helps them to learn how to get along with others.”

- Golinkoff & Hirsh-Pasek, 2004, Einstein Never Used Flashcards, p. 240

We believe a language-rich environment is crucial to the development of young children with hearing loss. Our primary goals are to foster language and communication, develop thinking and problem-solving skills, and nurture socialization.

We believe that non-structured, spontaneous play provides natural opportunities to build on children’s existing language.

We believe that structured time together helps to reinforce and refine skills.

We create activities where children are supported to master developmentally appropriate skills, learn new vocabulary, express themselves, build confidence in who they are, and most of all....have fun!
